Many quizzes relate to movies and TV shows, but there are some about personality, relationships and life.CC0/fancycrave1/Pixabay BuzzfeedBuzzfeed is an entertainment and news company focused on digital media. People love to talk about and learn about themselves, which is why these games are so popular. You can download statements and images of checks you've written if you need documentation for anything, or you can just review transactions to keep fraud out of your account. You usually have the option of going paperless with online banking. In addition to opening deposit accounts such as checking and savings, you can also borrow online. But if you're ready for more, you can move on to more advanced tasks. Online banking makes life easier, but it also creates opportunities for thieves. It features thousands of quizzes on virtually every topic ranging from silly to educational.CC0/Pexels/Pixabay AllTheTests.comAllTheTests.com is a simple and fun website designed for people to waste time playing games and taking quizzes. Online banks also offer money market accounts and certificates of deposit (CDs) if you want to earn even more. If you've got a mobile device with a camera, you can probably use it to deposit checks into your account 24/7. Once you're up and running, it's time to start using your account. Create an account to track the quizzes you've taken and earn points. Online banking gives you the ability to manage your money online over the internet, using your computer or mobile device, instead of visiting a bank branch. JetPunk is unique in that for every quiz you take, you're helping plant trees. Since online-only banks lack brick-and-mortar branches, you'll need to be somewhat tech savvy with websites and apps. Traditional banks let you fill out applications, and newer online lenders make borrowing completely different; it's easier to get approved, faster, and possibly even less expensive to borrow. You can set up one-time payments or choose recurring payments for bills that are the same each month. That information is probably in your banking history, and you can look it up online. If you're ready to play quiz games, check out these fun online quiz sites.SporcleSporcle is one of the largest online quiz sites with more than 500,000 different quizzes played nearly three billion times. However, there are tons of games and quizzes that are just for fun, too.CC0/szc356/Pixabay LoveToKnowLoveToKnow is a website designed to provide quality advice to people all over the world. With a mobile deposit, you don't need to find the time to make a trip to the branch or wait for the mail to deliver those checks to your bank. If you're not doing it already, it's wise to look at having your paychecks automatically deposited into your bank account. Self-service options are also available, and that may even be your fastest option. Parents can feel confident that their kids are on a safe site and play a quiz or game created just for them. You can connect with other quiz lovers in the chatroom and forum. Going online allows you to download transactions or authorize your software to automatically get the information needed. It features articles, quizzes and videos that are widely shared on social media. To start banking online with your existing account, you'll need to sign up for electronic services. You can bank online with your existing bank, or even open a new account with an online-only bank. If you need help with service issues, try taking care of business online. A portion of the site is dedicated to fun, mindless quizzes such as Would You Rather, trivia, Disney characters, love and other topics.CC0/JESHOOTScorn/Pixabay PlaybuzzPlaybuzz is a website where publishers, brands and independent content creators can share their stories. While you can't trade points in for any prizes, you get bragging rights on the leaderboards.CC0/sasint/Pixabay KidzworldKidzworld is a social networking site designed for kids and teens. If your account is affected by fraud or errors, there's a decent chance your personal accounts will be protected (your business accounts are another matter). Besides saving trips to the branch, you can make payments online, view account balances, move money between accounts, and much more. Quizzes on the site are for entertainment purposes, but they also help you learn more about yourself, your personality and your relationships.CC0/cuncon/Pixabay MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED.NET If you want to start banking online, you can start by opening your account online. You can play with others by developing your own quiz and publishing it on your social media or website for free.CC0/StockSnap/Pixabay JetPunkJetPunk is one of the largest quiz websites with more than 200 million quizzes published to date and in more than a dozen languages. The site has a combination of fun and educational quizzes for kids to play.CC0/Pexels/Pixabay National Geographic KidsNational Geographic Kids isn't a site solely dedicated to quizzes. If possible, save those tasks for when you're at home or at work on a network you trust. An online bank is a great place for your savings. The website donates 5 percent of its revenue to the Arbor Day Foundation.CC0/picjumbo .com/Pixabay Fun TriviaFun Trivia has quizzes, crossword puzzles, challenges, lists and more. In most cases, that's just a matter of going to the bank's website, looking for "online banking" or something similar, and clicking "register" when asked for a username and password. Millions of people take quizzes every day to learn more about themselves and to test their knowledge. You can change your address, order copies of checks, and handle other routine tasks yourself. Need help choosing a bank account? Think twice before you provide personal information online. Those requests are almost always phishing scams. Some of the advantages of online-only banks are that they're more likely to offer higher rates on savings accounts, free checking, and fewer (and lower) fees. There are several easy ways to send money to somebody without writing a check or digging for exact change. You can keep it simple if you like and just view your account balances. There are numerous third-party tools to help you do categorize your spending and build budgets (including Mint, among others), and your bank might already have built-in personal finance management tools. Choose the quiz you want to take from popular and trending quizzes, select an interesting category or click the "Random" button for a surprise. Some fraud is out of your control, but your behavior is important—and it's fairly easy to stay safe. Your employer will get funds to you more quickly if you sign up for direct deposit. Instead of writing checks and mailing in payments, you can have your bank do all of that for you. Keep your devices up to date (including operating system updates, spyware and malware programs, and antivirus protection), and you'll be immune to most threats. One of the most useful features of online banking is free online bill payment. Many of the quizzes on the site involve listing all of the items within a certain category.CC0/StartupStockPhotos/Pixabay ZimbioZimbio is an entertainment website owned by Livingly Media. If you need to know exactly how much you have in your account—and how much is really available for spending—the best place to get that information is online. Make a list of your needs and must-have features, and do some research to find the bank that matches most—or all—items on your list. If you use mobile devices, you can do everything there instead—just download your bank's app and register for a username and password. If you don't have a bank account anywhere—or you're going to switch to an online-only bank—you'll need to open an account. Need to know how much you paid for a particular item (or your average monthly utility bill)? Your bank will never contact you by phone, email, or text and ask for your account number, Social Security number, password, or PIN. Likewise, public computers (like those found at libraries) are not a good option for online banking. Especially if you're not in a hurry, it might be easiest to send electronic requests to a customer service agent instead of calling. You'll usually also need a certain amount of money to open the account. Most banks offer services for making person-to-person payments, while other services (such as PayPal) simply act as a front-end to access your bank account. You can also move funds between your own bank accounts. It's a site where kids and teens can explore science and the world around them. At a minimum, it's a good idea to sign up with your bank's app or website, and it might also be worth looking into online-only banks. Most online accounts pay more interest than traditional brick-and-mortar accounts, and internet-only accounts tend to pay the best rates. CC0/472301/Pixabay If you like to take quizzes, you are not alone. If you already have a bank account, you're halfway there. If you want to transfer funds from one bank to another—or just from checking to savings at a single bank—an app or website makes it easy. And if you ever need a statement (when getting a mortgage, for example), you can always print the one or two you actually need. If you know where your money goes by tracking your finances, you'll make better spending decisions and it's easier to reach your financial goals. Avoid using old, unsupported computers for financial transactions. Avoid using public networks to access bank accounts (including free hotspots at coffee shops and hotel networks). You can make quizzes or play them in a variety of categories. Need to pay a friend for your share of dinner or rent? To open a new bank account, you'll usually need a government-issued ID, a second form of identification, as well as your personal information, such as your Social Security number, and address. Almost every bank or credit union offers online services. It features news and information about celebrities, movies, TV and music, but also has a large section devoted to fun quiz games. If you have to conduct business while out and about, use your phone's cellular data connection instead. Federal law protects consumers from certain unauthorized transfers, but you have to notify your bank of any problems quickly to get maximum protection.
