not entirely necessary. The following table will list all the missions that grant extra skill trees. The congest coins are what they are needed And you should have a healthy supply. Agility is also a necessity, but since this is only the maximum at 50 from the gems, you should only need one. The reason for this is because they have a built-in speed built-in That is normally a gem of weapon only. While the ancient Daedala is considered one of the hardest superboss. It is the only source of Night Vision V crystals, which are super important to combat the bosses listed after it. Jifum Beach on Fallen Arm is a great place to grind for sp so, for example, à €[™] you're fighting an enemy of level 80 with a level 90 character and two levels 60, 12 (1 of 2) Tephra Cave It is an ideal place to level two places where there is a high concentration of enemies are Jifum Beach on the fallen arm, and the powder feeding den in Tephra cave. Note that these are only the crystals that enemies fall, so you are going to create gems, with some quick suggestions following the table. The good thing about Final Cross is that à € à €[™] need to use an art that breaks before it, but has two negative sides. If you are playing on New Game +, Shulk has access to a much better weapon than those below, with Monado III. The quantity of SP that receive from the enemies is directly proportional to your average party level for those in your active party. You could also equip a attack plus about her to increase her overall damage, as a force up. The last two gems go hand in hand with Melee users. Join this with the 98 from leveling up and you will have a total of about 250 coins of affinity for each character. 1234 (1 of 4) Get crystal drops from normal enemies Makes a little easier for max gems so, you could be asking where to get all the crystals / gems. Once the levels are exhausted, the next one you want to do is max out of the party's affinity for everyone. Fortunately, skills in those unlockable trees have reduced SP requirements than predefined trees. The definitive edition certainly helps in the rectification experience, as it offers both the modalities What Expert. Maybe you'll be wondering why daze à €[™] t included in this combo, and that À € à €[™] s because apart from final final The other superbosses are completely immune to Daze. If you're using Melia or Riki, then having Chill Plus and Poison Plus would work great, as they are the best damage skills over time for both characters. The first place has enemies around 51-53, while the second will have enemies around the 90s. While it may seem a bit useless at first, doing so will allow you to use skill links. For an Ether setup on Sharla, swap those Strength Ups with Ether Ups. This jewel, in particular, gives a 45% Fast buff to the character who is equipped with it, which is only 5% off the maximum you can get from that buff. Considering you probably haven't beaten the superbosses yet, you should be able to collect up to 152 coins from Unique Monsters in a first playthrough. 12 (1 of 2) Glory Slobos have the ability to drop Glory Gloves Slobos have the ability to drop Glory Gloves (left), The Haste on the Glory Gauntlets makes it so No need to waste a weapons slot (right) For scrum characters, though, the Glory Gauntlets are definitely superior. The latter makes it much easier to find enemies around your level, since you can use Expert Mode to set your levels lower than necessary. General Preparations Since all super bosses are above the maximum level you can get, the first thing you need to do is reach the maximum level of 99 for all your characters. In New Game+, you can defeat all the Unique Monsters again for more coins; keep doing so over and over again in subsequent games, up to a maximum of 999 Affinity Coins. While you could probably use any weapon for this, there might be some who have better stats about them than others. Final Marcus à Level 100, Valak Ancient Daedala à 105, Fallen Arm Despotic Arsene à Level 108, Satorl Marsh Blizzard Belgazas à Level 114, Valak Mountain Avalanche Abaasy à Level 120, Valak Mountain Only from the levels you can see that some of the Super-leaders will be daunting battles, and that doesn't take into account their abilities and other oddities. The only other thing you might need, which is for Fiora, is Double Attack, which plays with her self-attacking force. Of course, the place in the Tephra Cave will be better, as it is a high level area and you will have more overall experience. Well, the following table will show the locations of these. If an enemy is overturned and you execute another Art that inflicts it, then the timer is reset, making the enemy an easy target. You can get gloves of glory from the super bosses themselves, as well as drops from Glory/Gloria Slobos on Mount Valak (Tree Sage Summit). Super bosses in Xenoblade Chronicles are defined as all 100 plus Level Unique Monsters, of which there are five in the game. Stormy Belagon is his name and has a Sleep Spike shield, which means that whoever attacks him will take a short nap. One is available during the main story, while the other four will not appear until you have finished the Mechonis Core part of the story. For Riki, you could also replace Back Atk Plus with Blaze Plus, as the damage caused by the fire over time is not part of the damage he suffered. Although there isn't much to say about equipment, you want to have as much space available for gems on every equipment, with a few exceptions. This covers defensive gems, so let's take a look at offensive gems, which differ depending on who you bring into combat. Back Atk Plus is another good option for the above characters, as it allows them to stay out of any area-of-effect attack from the front, as well as deal more overall damage. So, any Art that inflicts Daze shouldn't even have a home in your Arts palette when you're fighting superbosses, unless you I want to use it to damage you. Two of the super bosses have their Topple timers cut in half. half. TI Elhw DNA, Elppot TCILTAMS EVERNT EH, Revewah SIHT Tubh
